In 1962, James Meredith became the first African American student to enroll at the University of Mississippi. His presence on campus sparked violent riots that left two people dead and hundreds injured. In his memoir, Bad Dogs, Black Cadet in Dixie, Meredith tells the harrowing story of his experience and the fight for civil rights in the American South.

Meredith's story is a powerful reminder of the racism and violence that African Americans faced in the United States during the Jim Crow era. It is also a testament to the courage and determination of those who fought for equality. Bad Dogs, Black Cadet in Dixie is a must-read for anyone interested in American history, civil rights, or the power of one person to make a difference.
