Physical Skills

Scouts will be looking at your physical skills first and foremost. This includes your speed, strength, fielding ability, and throwing arm.

Speed: Scouts want players who can run fast. This is important for both offense and defense. On offense, you need to be able to steal bases and leg out infield hits. On defense, you need to be able to track down balls in the outfield and make quick throws to the infield.

Strength: Scouts also want players who are strong. This is important for hitting the ball with power and fielding ground balls cleanly. Strong players are also less likely to get injured.

Fielding ability: Scouts will be looking at your ability to field ground balls, fly balls, and line drives. They want to see that you have soft hands, quick reflexes, and a good arm.

Throwing arm: Scouts want players who can throw hard and accurately. This is important for both pitchers and outfielders. Pitchers need to be able to throw strikes and get batters out. Outfielders need to be able to make strong throws to the infield to prevent runners from advancing.

Mental Game

In addition to your physical skills, scouts will also be looking at your mental game. This includes your focus, determination, and ability to handle pressure.

Focus: Scouts want players who can stay focused on the task at hand. This means being able to block out distractions and execute your game plan.

Determination: Scouts want players who are determined to succeed. This means being willing to work hard, even when things are tough.

Ability to handle pressure: Scouts want players who can handle pressure. This means being able to perform under pressure and make decisions that will help your team win.

Off-Field Behavior

Scouts will also be looking at your off-field behavior. This includes your work ethic, attitude, and character.

Work ethic: Scouts want players who are willing to work hard to improve their game. This means being willing to put in extra time in the weight room, on the field, and in the classroom.

Attitude: Scouts want players who have a positive attitude. This means being a good teammate and being willing to work hard for the team.

Character: Scouts want players who have good character. This means being honest, respectful, and responsible.

How to Impress Scouts

Now that you know what scouts are looking for, here are some tips on how to impress them:

* Be prepared: Be prepared for your tryout or showcase by practicing your skills and getting in shape. * Dress professionally: When you go to a tryout or showcase, dress professionally. This shows that you are serious about your baseball career. * Be respectful: Be respectful to the scouts and coaches at your tryout or showcase. This shows that you are a good teammate and that you are willing to work hard. * Play hard: Show the scouts what you can do by playing hard at your tryout or showcase. This means running hard, fielding ground balls cleanly, and hitting the ball hard.

* Be coachable: Be open to feedback from the scouts and coaches at your tryout or showcase. This shows that you are willing to learn and improve.

Becoming the total package that pro and college baseball scouts want takes hard work and dedication. But if you are willing to put in the effort, it is possible to achieve your dream of playing baseball at the next level.

Follow the tips in this guide and you will be on your way to impressing scouts and advancing your baseball career.
